

Intense breeding activities lead to the development of a new cocktail tomato with oblong fruits which are ideally suited for professional cultivation. This small tomato convinces with its particularly fruity aromatic taste and its attractive oblong-oval form. It results from a cross-breeding and was developed through targeted selection over a period of several years.

The fruits are shining red, have a firm pulp and a good shelf life. The fruits are very productive and form numerous long grapes. The fruits can be harvested and marketed easily as individual fruits without their calyx. With a fruit weight of about 15g, it represents an ideal cocktail tomato.

This variety is recommended for professional greenhouse cultivation in particular.
